INTRODUCTION

The History and Map of Danby, Vermont was published in 1869 by J.C. Williams, and, of course, has long been out of print. I recently discovered that it was reprinted by the S.L. Griffith Memorial Library in Danby, Vermont in 1976 as a Bicentennial Reprint and has been reprinted twice since then. Copies are still available from the Library and the Town Clerk's office in Danby.

A book is much more valuable when there is an index, and since there are so many names mentioned in this book, I decided to do an index for it. Upon completing the index, I discovered there were over 11,000 entries.

Mr. Williams states in an early chapter of his book, "Danby is situated in the extreme southern part of Rutland County, is in latitude 43 deg. 21 min., and longitude 4 deg. 1 min., and is bounded on the north by Tinmouth and Wallingford, on the east by Mt. Tabor, on the south by Dorset, and on the west by Pawlet. It contains 24,960 acres, being little more than six miles square."

I have tried to spell the surnames and given names as they appear in the book. I have also tried to be as accurate as possible in entering the information, but errors can always creep in! When a surname appears to have more than one spelling, I have put them together, i.e., Paris/Parris. I have listed given names as shown, although I feel sure some listings are for the same person.

Every time I do an index, I learn something to help me in my next one. In this case, when I was entering a surname that didn't show a given name, I skipped that column. That made the page number print immediately after the surname. When formatting the index, I decided to put ----- in place of the given name and have it on the next line with the page number after it. I believe I have found and corrected all these given names, but if I have missed any, I am sorry! The next time I use the indexing program, I will put ----- where a given name would go.

I dedicate this index to the memory of my maternal grandmother, Clara (Doty) Gilman, who has many ancestral lines mentioned in this book.
